"We're thrilled to once again host PAMM Presents on Thursday of Art Week, this year with performances by Amaarae, DJ Tunez, and Dare Balogun under the creative guidance of cultural curator Grace Ladoja. PAMM Presents draws in over 4,000 guests annually to celebrate PAMM as a collecting institution with an ongoing mission to promote artistic expression and the exchange of ideas to advance public knowledge and appreciation of art, architecture, and design, while representing and cherishing the unique diversity of Miami-Dade. Through its exhibitions and programs, it aims to encourage everyone to see art as an incentive for genuine human interaction, communication, and exchange.

Throughout the evening, guests will also have the opportunity to view José Parlá: Homecoming, the Miami-born artist's monumental exhibition including a site-specific mural painted on-site via a weekend-long live painting performance; Hurvin Anderson: Passenger Opportunity, a monumental sixteen-panel painting that culls from Caribbean immigration stories; Calida Rawles: Away with the Tides, which delves into the particular experience of Black people in Miami's Overtown community; and Xican-a.o.x.
